

Michael Edwards - 'The Special Wash' and 'The Wardrobe'

About Michael

Michael has no pretensions about being an author, despite spending many years as a "technical writer" producing lengthy instruction manuals, that no one ever bothered to read! He trusts that these short memories of childhood might give just a little more pleasure than his earlier works. Michael has some skills himself in lip-reading, and finds them of enormous benefit in everyday life.

Kath Whiting - 'Playing with Fire'

About Kath

Kath writes romance-infected short stories and microfiction. Her work has been published in Schooldays (a Paper Swans Anthology) and The New Writer magazine and she once won the Winchester Discovery Centre short story slam. She's currently in an on-off relationship with a half-written novel. When she's not writing, Kath can be found drawing, dancing and enjoying the colour green, sometimes simultaneously.

This is her blog site: <http://kathwhiting.blogspot.co.uk>

Barrie Wickens - 'The Sound of Maroons'

About Barrie

Barrie enjoys writing poetry and the occasional short story. He must enjoy writing as, like all teachers of lipreading to adults, he has to prepare his own lessons! He has recently joined a Creative Writing class and hopes to write more for Stories for Lipreading.