

S. Bee – ‘That’s My Room!’

About S. Bee

S. Bee is happily married and lives in West Yorkshire. She has had letters, opinion pieces and poetry published in a wide range of UK national magazines. In 2011, she set up her own short story email critique group, Fiction Addiction. It's still going strong today!

S. Bee's short stories have appeared in My Weekly, Your Cat, The Weekly News, Take a Break's Fiction Feast, Prima, Ireland's Own, YOU (South Africa) and Fast Fiction (Australia). For information about more stories by S. Bee and other writers, see www.ryecorn.orgfree.com

Jan Church – ‘A Golden Elephant on an English Hill’ and ‘Jonas Hanway and his ‘Portable Roof’.

About Jan

Jan says: 'My literary output is usually confined to comic verse for the family (with the occasional more serious offering) but I do enjoy researching and writing about oddities, usually with a historical or archaeological theme.'

Nick Coe – ‘A Grand Day Out’.

About Nick

Nick gets writer's block drafting a shopping list for Sainsbury's (and occasionally even Aldi) so he much prefers to read and discuss the efforts of others. He has been excluded from his wife's reading group because he actually wants to talk about the book. Five years ago he co-founded Hampshire's first reading group for hearing impaired people, in association with the local lip-reading tutor and her class. Its success proves that book groups can work, even with a token man.

Anne Colledge – ‘Gadgets’ and ‘The Phone Call’

About Anne

Anne loves writing. Her children's books, Falling into Fear and Northern Lights have deaf heroes. She taught deaf children for 30 years and is now deaf herself. She loves kayaking.

Peter Dean – ‘A Perfect Day’ and ‘Sunglasses’

About Peter

Peter writes: I am a 54 year old man who has been writing for pleasure and publication since 1989. I have had over 200 poems published in various publications along with stories in Dream Catcher and Cambridgeshire County Life Magazine.

I enjoy gardening and also write a garden page for County Life Magazines. You can also find my stories on the web, the latest site being storiesforlipreading.co.uk

Michael Edwards - ‘A Special Wash’, ‘The Wardrobe’, ‘Marmalade Sandwiches’, ‘Pipe Troubles’, ‘Where’s Joe?’

About Michael

Michael has no pretensions about being an author, despite spending many years as a “technical writer” producing lengthy instruction manuals that no one ever bothered to read! He trusts that these short memories of childhood might give just a little more pleasure than his earlier works. Michael has some skills himself in lip-reading, and finds them of enormous benefit in everyday life.

Alva Holland – ‘The E is Silent’

About Alva

Alva is an Irish writer from Dublin, who was first published by Ireland's Own Winning Writers Annual in 2015. Three times a winner of Ad Hoc Fiction's weekly flash competition, her stories feature in The People's Friend, Firefly Magazine, Microcosms Fiction, Stories for Homes, Ellipsis Zine and Zero Flash.

Jean Hulme – ‘White Lilies and Pink Carnations’.

About Jean

Jean says: 'Three years ago I joined a creative writing class when hearing loss finally forced me to retire from working as a speech/drama teacher and spoken word examiner. At that time I also found the enormous benefits lip-reading classes offered. I am now delighted to be able to offer my stories to you and hope you will enjoy them. My blog site is Memories, musings and make-believe <http://myjottingsite.wordpress.com>'

Gill Rogers – ‘A Little Jaunt in the Countryside’, ‘Is it true what they say...?’, ‘Love is Blind’ and ‘Look what the cat dragged in’.

About Gill

Gill has always enjoyed writing and, like all aspiring authors, hopes one day to write that elusive best-seller. However, in the real world, music is her first love and she has been an amateur musician for almost 50 years. Recently retired from working life in the NHS, (previously serving in the Royal Air Force), she hopes to spend more time with her grandchildren and, obviously, to do more writing.

Sherri Turner – ‘If I had a hammer’, ‘Physical Jerks’, ‘The Man on the Bus’

About Sherri

Sherri Turner was brought up in Cornwall and now lives in Surrey with her husband. She has had numerous short stories published in women's magazines in the UK and abroad (under the pseudonym Bernadette James) and has won prizes in competitions for both poetry and short fiction.

Her stories have also appeared in a number of anthologies. She tweets at @STurner4077.

Kath Whiting - ‘Playing with Fire’ and ‘Unscheduled’.

About Kath

Kath writes romance-infected short stories and microfiction. Her work has been published in Schooldays (a Paper Swans Anthology) and The New Writer magazine and she once won the Winchester Discovery Centre short story slam. She's currently in an on-off relationship with a half-written novel. When she's not writing, Kath can be found drawing, dancing and enjoying the colour green, sometimes simultaneously.

This is her blog site: <http://kathwhiting.blogspot.co.uk>

Barrie Wickens - ‘After Lunch, She Rested’, ‘A Whizz-Bang Job’, ‘The Gentleman’s Relish’ and ‘The Sound of Maroons’.

About Barrie

Barrie enjoys writing poetry and the occasional short story. He must enjoy writing as, like all teachers of lipreading to adults, he has to prepare his own lessons! He has recently joined a Creative Writing class and hopes to write more for Stories for Lipreading.
